In this document the first approach taken to design and test the workflow will be presented.

In order to test this preliminary workflow, a test realized in Barcelona in May 2009 is explained.

Due to the diverse possibilities available, to perform this test different camera brands, frame rates, file formats and resolutions were used, and was built an end to end production chain too to get the maximum information from those experiences and stages of the production process, possibilities for the workflow and differences compared to 2D production.

Additionally to that, the validation processes will be explained.
